

of said magnetic cylindrical body having a series of rotor pole pairs thereon, each of the rotor pole pairs having a north magnetic pole and a south magnetic pole, and a rotary shaft mounted in a center of said rotary disk support, said rotary disk support having a plurality of through holes extending therethrough, said plurality of through holes being distributed unevenly so as to cause said rotor to have an unbalanced vibratory rotation.